City rejects Theta Chi's party permit

by Julie Wallace
assistant wire editor

Although City Council unanimously voted against a Theta Chi fundraiser last night, a former president of the fraternity vowed the fight is not over.

"We have not ruled out going to court on this issue," said Tim Noonan, former Theta Chi president. "We know the zoning laws for the areas, and the city fails to see it is in a business district."

The proposed fundraiser, Theta Fest, was to be held Saturday, April 30 at the fraternity house, 334 N. Main St. The fraternity had already received an F-permit from the state to sell alcohol, but was stalled by a city ordinance requiring council to grant permission for the event.

Don Pond, Ward 1 councilman, said although the council wants to work with University students, the fundraiser, which would have been held in his ward, raises too many residential concerns.

"The basic opposition pertains to how the Theta Chis contain the students to and from the party, pedestrian traffic through the residential district," Pond said. "This is a question not easily answered and I don't think the Theta Chis have to capacity to deal with."

William Blair, Ward 3 councilman, cited the proposed location of the fundraiser as the reason for its downfall.

"The fraternity has every right in the world to be granted the permit with only one exception — location," Blair said. "It was quite evident that the fraternity house

Candidates vie on big Tuesday

(AP) — Republican presidential contenders Bob Dole and Jack Kemp invoked President Reagan's name Monday in an effort to stem a George Bush tide on Super Tuesday that could propel the vice president far ahead of his rivals.

Meanwhile, the Democrats focused on Texas on the last full day of campaigning before the most delegate-rich showdown in political history.

In Washington, a federal judge dismissed GOP candidate Pat Robertson's $35 million libel suit against a former Republican congressman who questioned his Korean War record.

Gov. Michael Dukakis of Massachusetts, the leader in a new poll of Texas Democrats, spoke Spanish as he sought support from the state's Hispanic voters Sunday and then flew to Georgia where he met with former President Jimmy Carter.

Dole told a reporters at a news conference in Atlanta that "polls do demonstrate that I beat all the Democrats. He (Bush) doesn't beat any of them. ... We're trying to continue to Reaganize the Republican Party, to let it grow."

Police hunt for peekers

by Rebecca Thomas
staff reporter

Offenhauer Towers has joined Harshman Quadrangle in reporting incidents of intrusions, according to campus police.

Lt. David Weekley, campus police patrol supervisor, said several recent cases of men entering women's showers in Offenhauer have been reported.

Campus police said the incidents have been occurring since February, and descriptions of the men have been obtained. The cases are presently under investigation. Police declined further comment.

The staff of Offenhauer Towers has increased its security efforts in response to the recent incidents, according to a memo issued to Offenhauer residents by Chuck Johnson, Offenhauer hall director.

The memo noted an increase in the hours of the night staff of Offenhauer, as well as additional time "doing rounds" on the floors. Each resident was also asked to follow several security measures.

Residents are encouraged to use the "buddy system" when they shower, by showering in the same bathroom instead of using bathrooms at the same time on opposite sides of the floor, according to the memo.

Offenhauer residents were also reminded of standard policies such as the dormitory escort system and entry after midnight.

Campus police have also increased patrols in the residence halls. While the concentration on dormitories is necessary at this time, it has resulted in a rise in campus parking-lot crime, Weekley said.

Although it is hard to be certain the increase in parking-lot crime is a direct result of the high residence hall concentration, Weekley said he sees it as an obvious connection.

USG debates allocations

by Catherine Hoehn
staff reporter

Some representatives of the Undergraduate Student Government are concerned that USG is holding back on some of its funds.

Jill Hoffman, chairwoman of the Finance Committee, said at Thursday's meeting she believes the budget outlined by USG treasurer Todd Landis contains a lot of "fat," or overestimations, of how much money would be spent in certain areas. The same money could be allocated to other needy organizations, she said.

A heated debate developed during the meeting, ensuing a motion to allocate money to two other campus organizations.

The USG finance committee recommended $100 for The Pi Sigma Phi's "Media's Effect on Campaign '88," and $200 to the University's American Marketing Association for its International Collegiate Conference.

"It would be difficult to draw any kind of distinction between which organizations would get money and which would not."

--Kim Strong, chief legislative officer

Kim Strong, USG chief legislative officer, did not agree with Hoffman and said it would be hard to draw the line on which groups received money.

"It would be difficult to draw any kind of distinction between which organizations would get money and which would not. It's not really our job to do," she said.

After several members of the General Assembly attempted to voice their opinions regarding the issue, USG Vice President Jim Perry began to cut off speakers.

"It was a terrible meeting," he said. "We do have a one hour limitation before they lock up the building. I'm glad we have discussion...but we need to shut-up to have time to hear from the people we need to hear from."

The issue remained unresolved, and the General Assembly tabled the proposals until this Thursday's meeting, due to lack of time.

USG President Dave Robinson, prior to the meeting, said the purpose of USG is not to allocate funds to other campus organizations. He said USG has spent the $22,000 given by the Advisory Committee of General Fee Allocations cautiously, and that the remaining funds, totaling $8,657.72, will be well spent.

"There is no way there is any money left to give to campus organizations," he said. "We have as much money right now as we should have."

Landis presented an expenditure breakdown for the rest of spring semester, from which the most money, $2,200, would be spent on USG elections. Robinson said about $4,000 of the remaining resources are fixed costs, including supplies and employee salaries.

In other business at Thursday's meeting, the General Assembly approved Option 1 for on-line registration, offering a user-fee financial plan.

Shuttle survivors reach settlement

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government and Morton Thiokol, Inc., split the $7,735,000 cost of buying annuities to settle claims by survivors of four of the astronauts who died aboard the space shuttle Challenger, according to documents released Monday.

Morton Thiokol, the company that produced the faulty booster rocket blamed for the Jan. 28, 1986 explosion, paid 60 percent of the total cost of buying the annuities, or $4,641,000, the Justice Department acknowledged. The government's share, 40 percent, cost $3,094,000.

The families will actually receive more than $7.7 million because the annuities pay out over a period of many years. The total they will receive and the breakdown by family were not released.

The documents, along with several Justice Department statements describing how the settlements were reached, were released to settle a civil suit brought under the Freedom of Information Act by The Associated Press and six other news organizations. The government had originally kept all details of the settlements and how they were reached secret.

The settlements were reached by the government and the company with the immediate survivors of spacecraft commander Dick Scobee, 46, a retired Air Force officer employed by NASA; mission specialist Ellison S. Onizuka, 39, an Air Force lieutenant colonel; payload specialist Gregory Jarvis, 41, an employee of Hughes Aircraft Co., and Christa McAuliffe, 37, a Concord, N.H., high school teacher.

News in Brief

Mechanical chicken ruffles feathers

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP) — Feathers are flying in a dispute over a mechanical chicken perched above the drive-through sign at Sanford and Linda Simmons' Stuf'd Chicken restaurant.

Orange County officials say the 6-foot-tall mechanical bird violates a sign code as it beckons customers to cross the Pacific Coast Highway at Sunset Beach, about 30 miles south of Los Angeles.

But you'd think the bureaucrats had thrown a fox in a henhouse, the way it's got the Simmons' feathers ruffled.

"We've got a lot of money tied up in this chicken, so we're fighting back," Simmons said. About 500 people have signed the Simmons'

"Save Our Chicken" petition. A "Save Our Chicken" protest march is planned. And the Simmons have ordered "Save Our Chicken" buttons.

The chicken flouts the ordinance prohibiting free-standing or temporary signs in unincorporated parts of Orange County, said Gary Boettcher, the county's enforcement manager.

"We're trying to improve the visual aspects of Sunset Beach, and if everybody did this, it would promote a garish image," Boettcher said.

Simmons said their mechanical chicken has been an ideal replacement for reluctant teen-agers they had been paying to stand by the side of the road, dressed in a chicken outfit, and wave in the customers.

Council wrong

The city set relations between the University and residents back at least four years last night.

Ever since students held Manville Madness four years ago, when property was destroyed and a fireman was injured by drunken students, the city and the University have worked together to provide alternatives to uncontrolled beer blasts — until last night.

Disregarding students' wishes, City Council turned down a Theta Chi request to hold a fundraiser at its house, 334 N. Main St.

Although the fraternity went to great lengths to appease all parties involved, City Council held all the cards and dealt from the bottom of the deck to the Theta Chis.

How soon it forgets similar F-permits being handed to other organizations such as St. Aloysius Catholic Church, the Elks' Club and the Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity.

City Council said the party could not be held at the Theta Chi's fraternity house, which is zoned for business, because it abuts private residences.

Although public outcry against the party was great, the same public voice would have carried little weight had the owner of the property decided to build a bar there instead of a fraternity house.

The weekend before the last week of classes is traditionally a party weekend for the students — and this year will be no exception.

Despite Mayor Miller's tough-talk about handling parties, Manville Madness may be back. The students tried to compromise, and no one would let them.

Crime chain of many links

By Mike Royko

The yuppie sat down at the bar and ordered a light beer, then looked around in a friendly manner.

In response, I curled my lip and gave him a hateful stare.

He fidgeted for a moment, then said: "What the heck's wrong?"

I told him that I did not take kindly to those who are a party to the crime of murder.

"Murder? Me? What are you talking about?"

I'll tell you what I'm talking about. Are you now, or have you ever been, a casual or social user of any illegal substances?

"Well, sure, I've done a little grass. Just about everybody in my generation has. So what?"

Ah, then haven't you heard what our First Lady said about you?

"Me? I've never even met her."

I meant you as part of a despicable class. She said that when you go to your condo, turn on your stereo and light up a joint, you are an accomplice to murder.

"Listen, I never get high enough to hurt anyone. All I do is eat a few chocolate chip cookies and fall asleep."

Nancy meant that you are a link in an evil, deadly chain. By buying that grass, you contribute to the dirty economic process that supports the international drug suppliers, the smugglers, the runners, the pushers and finally their murderous thugs who shoot people and corrupt the young.

"But the stuff I've smoked is from California. And my girlfriend gets it from her cousin, who buys it from a guy in her aerobics class."

Doesn't matter. It is all part of the same deadly process. And you are an accomplice.

He stared into his beer for a few moments, then said:

"You know, I guess she's right."

Then you admit to being an accomplice to murder?

"If the First Lady says so, yes. I won't deny it. But let me ask you something. Don't a lot of these drugs come in here from Mexico?"

Sure, tons of it. Tons of tons.

"Yeah, that's what I've read. And hasn't the Mexican government been kind of goofing off in trying to stop the stuff?"

They haven't been as cooperative as we would like.

"Right. Because a lot of Mexican cops and politicians have probably got a piece of the action?"

That's a widespread suspicion.

"Like in Panama, where that general has been running the country while he's running drugs down there?"

Yes, an unfortunate situation.

"Then why hasn't Nancy's husband taken some kind of action? Aren't there economic sanctions he can hit them with if they don't clean up their act on drugs?"

Yes, he has considerable powers. But now you're getting into a very complicated subject. There are diplomatic considerations. We must weigh the risks of alienating countries with whom we have friendly relations. There are times when we must consider the big picture and exercise restraint.

"Well, it's not very diplomatic of her to call me a murderer if her husband is letting them get away with it. And what about the contras? Haven't I read that some of them have been in the dope business?"

The president prefers that they be called freedom fighters. He often compares them favorably to Jefferson, Washington and Franklin.

"I didn't know Jefferson was ever suspected of peddling communism, therefore they must be forgiven some minor transgressions of our laws."

"I'm starting to understand. Maybe some of these people are dope dealers. But at least they're our friendly dope dealers."

I suppose that's one way to put it.

"Maybe that's why Nancy has never phoned the president of Mexico and told him: 'Ronnie and I would like you to say no to your country's drug dealers.'"

That would not be diplomatic.

"OK, then let me ask you about Ferddie Marcos and his wife. All those years they were running the Philippines, didn't everybody pretty well know that they were thieves and tyrants, pocketing the tax money we sent there and having people bumped off or thrown in prison?"

It was common knowledge, sure.

"Then why were Nancy and her husband so friendly with them. When they got together, it was always a lot of hugs and kisses. Didn't that make Nancy and Ron accomplices to all the low crimes the Marcos crowd was committing?"

Once again, that is diplomacy. "Why didn't Nancy just tell them: 'Ferdinand and Imelda, as a friend, can I ask you a favor? Would you please say no to corruption, tyranny and murder?'"

Don't be silly. That isn't the sort of thing you say at a White House dinner.

"I guess not. But don't the Reagans have a lot of rich friends in business and show biz?"

Yes, they've traveled in some prosperous circles.

"Then I'll bet some of their Palm Springs pals have sable coats and eat that expensive beluga caviar."

It wouldn't surprise me. If you got it, you flaunt it.

"But that stuff comes from Russia. So anybody who buys it is an accomplice to the spread of godless communism."

You may be right.

"You think she ever tells her rich friends: 'Say no to godless communism. Give your sable wrap to the Salvation Army?'"

That would be socially preposterous.

"You're probably right. But I wish she'd remember to do one other thing."

What's that?

"If the subject comes up again, she should say: 'Ronnie, say no to selling weapons to the Ayatollah. Those things can hurt somebody, dear.'"

A timeophobic tale

By Judy Immel

I was going to go without my watch for a whole day as an experiment, but I couldn't face the idea.

So what, you may ask.

Well, working in a newsroom, I pick up a lot of extraneous information, like the number of cases of toothbrush swallowing (31).

So I've learned not being able to live a day without a watch is a strong indication of a strange inflection called timeophobia.

Timeophobia affects a lot of people in the twentieth century, and I guess I'll come out of the closet now and admit that I'm one of them.

The symptoms of timeophobia are easily noticed. One, the victim constantly needs to know what time it is and if he or she is not wearing a watch, they will drive the people around them crazy by asking what time it is every five minutes.

Two, the victim wants to know how long things will take, down to the last second if possible. These are people who ask when someone will be able to call them back and who get frustrated when the cake which is supposed to bake in 20 minutes takes 35.

However, being timeophobic, surprisingly, does not necessarily mean a person is on time. I've come to the conclusion that those ideas are quite different.

I, timeophobic though I am, usually arrive just as things start, or later, because I can't stand sitting around waiting.

My roommates of my freshman and sophomore years were the types who arrived somewhere with plenty of time to spare. I got on their nerves quite a bit.

My roommate now, Kathy, is even worse about being late than I am, so together, we walk at full speed and arrive huffing and puffing to our 9:30 classes.

In the morning, Kathy pushes the snooze on her alarm clock until I swear she will never, ever make it to her first class. She always does get there somehow though.

I calculate minute-by-minute how long I need to take a shower, get dressed and curl my hair. Of course, I never, ever, figure enough time.

But as long as I know what time it is, I feel semi-secure. Without a watch, I don't know how many minutes I have left before I'm late. I can't answer the many people who ask me if I know what time it is.

The 1980s have given timeophobics a plethora of gadgets to help them.

Digital watches, showing the time to the exact second, always come in handy. I have an old-fashioned watch with a second hand, which usually works as well, except in the dark.

Knowing what time it is when it's dark is crucial, especially at the movies. Fortunately, my boyfriend's watch has a little light, so I can bother him about what time it is every 15 minutes or so.

Timeophobics today have microwave ovens to time how long their supper cooks. They have instant mashed potatoes, instant rice and fast food restaurants. They can type their words directly into a word processor, saving the time of dealing with rough drafts.

Today's world is on fast forward.

The timeophobics love it.

For those who like to take life at a more leisurely pace — watch out or you're going to get run over.

Immel, a junior news-editorial major from Cuyahoga Falls, is assistant city editor for The News.

Graduation should be time of adult behavior

This past December, I attended the winter graduation ceremonies. As I walked in and sat down with my parents, I prepared myself to sit and watch as hundreds of so-called "scholars" would walk in and accept the diplomas they had worked so hard for. Instead, I was shocked by all the "children" that walked in with signs, lights, and decorations draped over their caps and gowns. I am behind the Faculty Senate 110 percent. I think graduation should be a time of strict adult behavior.

In a letter in The BG News it was said that graduation was a time for celebration. Granted, it is, but to an extent. After the ceremony, a party is fine, but during is plain old stupid. After four years of partying into the wee hours of the morning, I think that graduating seniors can donate two or three hours to the likes of the BG faculty and other students' parents. If it is not humanly possible then I think the students should "leave, or better yet, not show up at all" (as Evan Noll said in his letter on March 2, 1988). As far as being "just another face in the crowd," as it was put in a letter by Amy Weasner on March 2, why not strive to attain a goal that will make yourself stand out, instead of making an ass out of yourself and making BG SU look bad.

In closing, I'd just like to say that if a so-called mature graduating senior can't donate a few hours of his or her extremely precious time to show their gratitude to a school that has put up with them for four years, then they have no room in a ceremony and should send in a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Lach's sanity contested

Defense cites divorce as cause for his mental state

by Ron Fritz and Greg Connel

On the final day of testimony in the John Lach murder trial, mental health experts gave conflicting opinions as to Lach's mental state.

The former mayor of Clay Center entered a plea of not guilty by reason of insanity for the April 4, 1987 car bombing that killed his wife, Elaine.

The legal definition of criminal insanity in Ohio requires the defendant "was either unable to determine right from wrong at the time of the offense, or was so compelled to act he could not conform to the law."

A Monroe, Mich., psychologist, the key witness for the defense, testified Monday that in his opinion, John Lach, 62, was "suffering mental illness that did impair his ability to conform and there is a reasonable doubt as to whether the defendant knew what was right or wrong."

Gerald Briskin, the director of psychology at Wyandot General Hospital, who has served as an expert witness in Ohio and Michigan, said a review of Lach's history has shown him as a man with an "obsessive character structure." He said most of Lach's behavior was a defense against "feelings of inadequacy and impotence."

According to Briskin, the marriage between John and Elaine Lach "was not a good one" and "was a marriage of conflict," because of Lach's obsession with the idea that his wife was seeing another man.

Briskin said Lach was "dominating, demanding and tyrannical," during the marriage, but when Mrs. Lach filed for divorce after some 40 years of marriage, it was an "intense blow" to Lach.

He said to this day, he believes Lach does not understand or accept any reasons (for the divorce.)

"The man was just overwhelmed, confused, he was literally running around like a chicken without his head," Briskin said.

Although the prosecution made the fact that Lach had said he should kill his wife and enter St. Charles Hospital an issue, Briskin refuted it as a call for help.

When he entered St. Charles, the examination showed that he was a psychotic depressive with paranoid features, "a condition that does not manifest within five minutes or 24 hours."

Briskin said the fact that Lach attempted to conceal his crime by taking his wife's car to an isolated area to plant the bomb, was not an indication Lach was in control.

"Remnants of his pre-morbid state remained and accounted for actions that may appear premeditated," Briskin said.

Thomas Sherman, medical director of the court diagnostic center, disagreed with Briskin's testimony.

He said Lach's ability to put the idea of bombing his wife out of his mind for extended periods of time showed he was able to determine right from wrong and conform with the law.

Sherman said Lach suffers from a paranoid personality, but is not insane.

"A paranoid personality is a remarkably stable condition that occurs for decades. He had plenty of opportunities to become psychotic in 40 years," Sherman said. "There is no evidence this condition was so severe that it impaired his judgement of right and wrong, or kept him from conforming to the law."

Sherman said Lach was subject to misconceptions, as paranoid people commonly are, but there was no evidence to prove he was suffering delusions or losing touch with reality.

"If Lach really were unable to conform to the law, he would have just went into the mall and shot her," Sherman said.

Although the defense asserted Lach's mental condition deteriorated in the months before his divorce, Sherman said Lach's actions would not indicate the change.

"If there really is a breaking point, it's characterized by inactivity, not activity," Sherman said.

Charlene Cassel, a forensic psychiatrist testifying for the prosecution, said Lach may be malingering, or attempting to fake mental illness in order to be judged as not guilty.

Audits assist rising seniors

by Elizabeth Kimes
staff reporter

With advanced registration in progress, University students planning to graduate next year are evaluating the remaining requirements they have left.

To aid students with this process in their junior year, the individual colleges at the University offer audits for students' records.

According to Darlene Thomas, academic adviser in the College of Arts and Sciences, students are recommended to obtain an audit after completing 75 semester hours.

An audit is an official examination of the student's progress toward his degree and indicates remaining unfulfilled requirements, she said.

In the College of Arts and Sciences, students are notified by the Registrar's Office once they have completed 75 hours to contact the college office about a degree audit.

Thomas said students should then obtain a check sheet from the college office, filling in courses, grades and hours they have taken and received up to that time.

She said she recommends students allocate two to three weeks for audits to be processed since the college handles an estimated 2,000 audits a year.

According to Sylvia Smith, student counselor for the College of Business Administration, the college's procedure for degree audits is similar to the one in Arts and Sciences.

Smith said nearly all students in Business Administration take advantage of the process before they graduate.

"I see very few files of people applying for graduation who haven't had an audit done," Smith said.

Grant aids study of defects

by Debbie Hipple
staff reporter

Eileen Underwood has been studying embryos for nearly three years in an effort to help prevent birth defects — she is beginning to receive some help.

Recently, the National Science Foundation decided to help the University biologist's research by awarding her a $160,000 grant.

The NSF is giving the assistant professor $80,000 to work with for the first year and an additional $80,000 over the next two years. Due to the many costs the research will have, the budget is strictly planned, with a large sum going to supplies and salaries, she said.

The budget allows Underwood to study the causes of birth defects. This will include examining women's eggs closely, she said.

"We're interested in things mothers put into the egg that are required for normal development," Underwood said.

According to Underwood, the research will include looking at the earliest processes that occur in the embryos. Some of these processes include rapid nuclear division and determination of the cell's fate.

"We will also be looking for mutations that cause early lethality, which may be analogous to other mutations in mammals and would result in spontaneous abortion," she said.

To do this she is analyzing two clones of the DNA, which involves isolating a number of sterile and embryonic mutations. Underwood said she has been doing this type of research for the last three years and is currently trying to find the information needed to prevent birth defects.

From research she has already finished, Underwood has learned that something in the ovary causes a woman's egg to be unable to fertilize.

Currently, she is using X-rays in the isolation process in addition to finding more mutations to get the information she needs in her research on how the embryos develop.

"We're still trying specific isolation," she said.

Social worker is awarded for his lifetime's work

by Debbie Hipple
staff reporter

The faculty member responsible for the inception of the University's Social Work program will be given a lifetime achievement award this month.

Evan Bertsche, associate professor of Social Work and the program's current director, will be awarded the National Association of Social Worker's Lifetime Achievement Award on March 17.

"I've outlived a lot of social workers," Bertsche said.

He said he grew up in a small, central Illinois town, where he played with children from a nearby orphanage.

"It left a lasting impression on me," Bertsche said.

After he received a degree in Social Work from Indiana University in 1951, he worked with abused and orphaned children, similar to the children he played with as a child.

In the early 1960s, Bertsche established probation offices in both Fulton and Williams counties where he was the chief probation officer in the county juvenile courts. He also was an Adult Probation Officer at the Lucas County Common Pleas Court and a Juvenile Probation Officer in Minneapolis, Minn., he said.

Now, in addition to his duties at the University, he works part-time at the Mental Health Center in Defiance with outpatients.

He started working part-time at the University in 1966. In 1974, the College of Health and Human Services decided to offer a degree in social work and he was asked to set up the department.

Today, the University can claim the largest social work department in the state due to Bertsche's work. With a small faculty, only four full-time employees and several part-timers, he said he has to work harder than most program directors.

"Since 1978 it has meant a lot to our graduates (to be from the largest program in the state)," he said.

Bertsche is a member of the Ohio Association of Social Work Educators, the Council of Social Work Education, the National Association of Social Workers and the National Association of Christians in Social Work.

However, he said he was surprised to learn of his award.

"I had no idea anyone was looking at me," he said.

Rangers place second in state

by Kathy Fox

The University's Black Swamp Battalion Ranger Competition Team finished in second place after a three-day state competition over the weekend involving 14 college units.

The competition, held in Athens, consisted of a physical fitness test, marksmanship, weapons assembly, patrolling, a 10-kilometer speed march, land navigation, a one-rope bridge crossing, and a grenade throw.

According to Sgt. Maj. Emmett Hiltibrand, the senior adviser of the team, the Rangers finished runner-up behind Ohio State University. In last year's inaugural event, Ohio University beat the University's team by a point and a half in the program's first year running.

The event focuses on developing the cadets for future officers in the U.S. Army, Hiltibrand said.

"I've got 19 years in the army. I have seen everything and done everything, but this one event with these kids is the best thing I have ever done in my life. I give them my all and they give me their all," he said.

The team had seven months of training, and had already beaten four of the other 13 teams who competed in the grueling three-day ordeal, Hiltibrand said.

The training and preparation for the event consisted of one road march per week, two weekly labs, and physical training which includes, but is not limited to, push-ups, sit-ups, flutter kicks, and a two-mile run five days a week, Hiltibrand said.

Brian Skomp, freshman team member, said "The choice of the team is very competitive, extremely tough, but there's very strong team unity and each person is very much an individualized character."

Nine members made up the Ranger team, including an alternate and one female, Shelly Bammel.

Also known as "The Rock," Bammel said she gets no privileges in this man's world.

"You're taught as a team, like a team-mate. There are no special privileges for being a girl... you hold your own and are part of the team," she said.

Club readies for real world

by Scott Korpowski
reporter

There is a University organization designed to mold students into America's movers and shakers.

The Young Executive Club, an organization which aims to groom undergraduates for success in the business world, stresses the development of professional demeanor and good business ethics, according to Brad Mankin, adviser to the club and an assistant director of placement.

John Hofmeyer, president of the Young Executive Club, said the club was created to reflect the situations an executive in the business world will have to handle.

"Start Your Future Today", the club's slogan, sums up the club's purpose, he said. The year-old club stresses what it takes to be successful in the business fields.

"The purpose of the Young Executive Club is to develop a professional attitude...a lifestyle, for students going into the business field," Mankin said.

The club solicits successful professionals to speak to the young executives on topics ranging from business preparation as a student, to job-searching strategies, and inside secrets on individual success once in the business world, he said.

"We have had a speaker discuss interviewing techniques, such as what to wear, what to say and how to act," Hofmeyer said. "And we like to bring in speakers to discuss timely business topics as well," he said.

The club operates on four levels — professional, academic, social and personal — to fully prepare a student for the business world, Hofmeyer said.

Scott Gargas, vice-president of internal operations for the club, said "Young executives need to think and act like executives. They need to have current business knowledge, and they need good social skills."

The club tries to develop these skills in its members through special programs.

"We first try to get members to identify their own latent skills, and then to pursue individual development, both personal and academic," Mankin said.

To hone their extemporaneous speaking skills by speaking on current business topics, members present student seminars, Hofmeyer said. Other programs include informal discussions on business issues.

A continuing stock market game, where each member parlays fake money according to the changes in the real market is one of the club's programs.

"I made $1,500 in three weeks," Gargas said. "The game teaches us that there is money to be made in the stock market, and to follow the market daily."

Partially inspired to join the club because of the recent television drama "The Billionaire Boys Club," Gargas said he enjoys the autonomy of the club.

"The club has no defined rules. We make our own business decisions the way we want, and can break off from the norm," he said.

The Young Executive Club is looking into affiliating with a national business fraternity, pending a decision by the dean. "The club operates on its own budget and is a non-profit organization."

The eight-member club is continuing its membership drive. "We have about 50 interested students and would like to take in about 30 to 35 members," Hofmeyer said.

25 dancers raise $2,200 to help MDA

by Debbie Hipple
staff reporter

The MDA Superdance held in Offenbauer Towers Friday raised nearly $2,200 for the Muscular Dystrophy Association, according to its program coordinator and chairwoman.

"It made us really happy to see everyone there," Kim Page said.

A total of 25 people came to Offenbauer Towers to dance and 20 danced for the entire 24-hour period beginning at 6 p.m. Friday and running until 6 p.m. Saturday. Between 25 and 35 people came in and out of the dance all evening and contributed to the cause, she said.

The theme of the 13th annual dance was "Rock Around The Calendar." Two hours were set aside for each month and the holidays in that month were celebrated. For each holiday, a special guest came to "keep up morale," Page said.

Each prospective member is put through a professional-style interview so the club can get quality members, as well as to familiarize new young executives with high pressure interviews, he said.

The Young Executive Club welcomes all business majors to join, and meets every other Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in 102 Business Administration.

BG News/Paul Vernon

The 24-hour superdance for the Muscular Dystrophy Association was held on Friday and Saturday starting at six p.m. on Friday. Eighteen people danced the whole time, and were joined periodically by special guests and people who just wanted to have fun.

"We had no budget to work with, so everything was donated to the cause," she said. The band, "Deep Six" played for two hours and Steve Gee, Inc., a disc jockey from Cleveland volunteered his services and local businesses contributed food for the dancers.

With the exception of Valerie Kern, the hall manager of Bat-chelder, and Page, all of the work was done by students.

"They (the students) put in a lot of long hours," Page said.

Muscular Dystrophy is a crippling disease that can strike anyone at virtually any point in life and usually results in death, she said.

□ A complainant heard a noise while she was sleeping in MacDonald Hall West Friday at 2 a.m., but went back to sleep. Later she reported to campus police that she noticed her window had been cracked.

Police believe that something was thrown at the window, however it was not broken. The window was replaced by maintenance.

□ Several suspects were questioned about their involvement in setting off fire alarms in Anderson Hall (Harshman Quadrangle). According to campus police, the suspects were standing under the detectors and blowing smoke into them Friday at 10:05 p.m.

□ A resident of Trearway Hall (Founders Quadrangle) is being referred to the Office of Standards and Procedures for unauthorized method of entry and breaking a window.

Campus police said on Saturday at 12:08 a.m., the subject was intoxicated and wanted to see if the window to his room was locked. When he found that it was, he pushed up against it and broke it. The subject will have to pay for the window, valued at $120, and face charges at Standards and Procedures.

City

□ A University student reported to police Sunday morning that an employee at Howard's Club H threw him against a wall and "shut his head in a door," causing lacerations.

Police said the student, Charles K. Benson, 018 Rodgers Hall, was trying to enter the bar through a back door but did not know the bar was not admitting patrons at the time.

It is alleged that the employee, identified as William C. Weigman, 146 S. College Drive, then assaulted Benson, police said. Benson was referred to the prosecutor's office by police.

□ A fight in a women's washroom at D.J.'s Bar, 809 S. Main St., Sunday morning caused minor damage. No arrests were made, police said.

□ Three white male subjects were seen breaking windows at the First Hope Pregnancy Center, 143 E. Wooster St., Sunday morning, police said.

A witness to the incident said she saw the males leave in "a large, ugly green" vehicle registered to a North Canton, Ohio man, police said.

Police were unable to catch the suspects. □ A car cover belonging to Dennis W. LaShaw, 1556 Clough St., was taken from his car some time Saturday night, police said.

The cover's value was estimated between $50 and $100.

□ A Bowling Green man told police when he returned home Sunday afternoon he found his wife with another man and two other unknown females.

According to police reports, one of the females and the man were engaged in "sexual activity."

When the complainant tried to remove the man and the two females, his wife asked him not to, police said.

The complainant then summoned the police. When the officers arrived, they found the wife and the females in the apartment. Police said the other man had left.

□ A security guard at the Woodland Mall, 1234 N. Main St., told police that a 7-year-old girl attempted to steal a prom dress worth $80 Sunday afternoon from an undisclosed store in the mall.

The girl was released to her parents and the store declined to prosecute, police said.

□ Police were summoned by an employee of McDonald's restaurant, 1470 E. Wooster St. because of a fight in the dining room.

When police arrived, the subjects were gone.

□ Two attempts were made to steal stereos from separate cars parked a block away from each other Saturday morning, police said.

The first attempt was made on a car parked at 724 Sixth St., causing damage to the plastic around the stereo, police said.

Five minutes later, another attempt to take a stereo was made on a car parked at 818 Seventh St. In this case, however, a radar detector and 24 cassette tapes in a case were taken, police said.

□ An 18-year-old male presented a doctored Ohio driver's licence while attempting to purchase a 12-pack of beer from Bostdorf's Carry-Out, 322 N. Grove St., Saturday night, police said.

The store clerk found the birth date had been changed from 1969 to 1967 when she inspected the license.

When she confiscated the license, Jeffrey L. Dewitte, 839 Standish Drive, became irate and went behind the sales counter to retrieve his identification, police said.

Dewitte fled in a car when the owner of the store came out. He returned to his house. Police later went there and asked to question the Dewitte.

His mother said he was not there. Police asked if she would tell him to come to the station when he returned.

Dewitte later came to the police station and was served with a summons, police said.

□ An unknown person was arrested for attempting to steal a 12-inch pizza valued at $7.50 from Myles' Pizza Pub, 516 E. Wooster St., and for possession of an altered identification card early Friday morning, police said.

Details regarding the incident are unknown.

□ A Notre Dame University student was arrested by police Friday night after officers saw him walk across parked cars. Police later discovered he had a fake Massachusetts driver's license.

□ Police responded to 10 loud noise/party complaints this past weekend.

would not be accepted by neighbors unless an effort is made."

During discussion before the final vote, Adam Bechler, fraternity president, said the fraternity was willing to work with the residents to make the fundraiser agreeable to them.

"We are willing to change the hours for drinking and for music," Bechler said. "The function is still two months away, which is why we wanted the hearing held now so we could work with everyone."

Noonan said original plans for the fundraiser were adjusted during the public hearing held Feb. 29, 1988, to accommodate the neighbors of the fraternity house.

"The taps will be shut off at 10 p.m. and the music will be turned off by 11 p.m.," Noonan said. He also agreed to a suggestion by a resident that the lot in which the party was to be held would be emptied by 11:30 p.m.

Denis West, 933 Champagne Ave., said council has accepted previous requests by groups for F-permits and a vote against Theta Fest 1988 would make the city appear prejudiced against the fraternity.

"The Elk's Club was granted permission to hold their function for three days," West said. "There were people on Campbell Hill Road against it, but it was approved."

"If you turn it down, the council will be perceived as prejudiced against them (fraternity members)."

Norman Heineman, chapter adviser for the fraternity, said students comprise most of the neighborhood around the fraternity house.

"The area is still called a residential neighborhood only because of so many University students living there," Heineman said. Calling it the hardest decision he has made so far, Pond said the chances of the fundraiser falling apart were too great.

"It would only take a handful of incidents to occur for the party to be labeled a failure," Pond said. "One incident can snowball and the residents will say City Council made a mistake."

Noonan said the fraternity may continue to fight for the fundraiser and this act by council will not dim future plans.

"We will prepare plans for another Theta Fest next year," he said. "There is no reason in the world why we should not be able to have it at our home."

Intruders

"When the guys (campus patrol) are not as mobile, the lots seem to take it a lot more," he said.

Campus police are usually patrolling the lots the majority of the time, especially the midnight shift, Weekley said. However, since dormitory patrol was increased, police do not patrol the lots as frequently.

"They are checking the dormitories real, real hard now and the parking lots are suffering," he said.

Specific complaints about intruders have been received from Dunbar Hall and Bromfield Hall, both in Harshman Quadrangle, as well as the Offenhauer incidents, Weekley said.

With the current situation, University police said they are trying to balance the amount of time spent in the parking lots and the residence halls.

"It's a give and take situation," Weekley said. "If we devote our energies to one area, another loses."

"The residence halls do take priority. We are trying to balance the two."

Kemp, struggling to survive after finishing no better than third in any contest so far, told an audience at Louisiana State University, "I think the Republican Party wants a Reagan Republican progressive conservative to be nominated and frankly, George Bush, Bob Dole and Pat Robertson don't qualify."

"We are in the race," insisted

Kemp, brushing aside questions of how well he had to do on Tuesday to survive.

While Dukakis met with Carter, Sen. Albert Gore Jr. of Tennessee picked up backing from another influential Georgian, Sen. Sam Nunn.

Four of Dukakis' rivals — Jesse Jackson, Gary Hart, Rep. Richard Gephardt of Missouri, and Gore — were in Texas Monday, as was Robertson. Bush was ending his campaign day in his hometown of Houston.

Gunmen rob center

Lebanese Red Cross workers attacked

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Three gunmen stormed into an International Red Cross center in the southern port city of Sidon and beat and robbed 25 relief workers, several victims said yesterday.

They told The Associated Press the gunmen also asked the group, which included Swiss, Norwegians, Danes and Belgians, if there were any Americans or Frenchmen among them.

The relief workers from various humanitarian groups had met Saturday night to call for the release of Peter Coleridge, 44, of the British Oxfam relief organization and his Syrian aide Omar Traboulsi, 31.

"They robbed everything we had on us, including passports and identity cards," said one victim, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Another said Swiss Red Cross attendants called in four Red Cross ambulances after the attack to take all of the victims to Beirut "because that was the only way to make it through Syrian army checkpoints without requests for IDs (identity papers)."

In Beirut, aides to Sidon's Sunni Moslem leader Musfata Saad said he was intensifying pressure on the Palestinian guerrilla group led by Abu Nidal to free Coleridge and Traboulsi.

Police accused Abu Nidal's Fatah-Revolutionary Council of holding the pair at Si-don's sprawling Ein el-Hilweh refugee camp despite denials by the faction's spokesmen.

Coleridge and Traboulsi were kidnapped Thursday during a visit to inspect Oxfam operations in Sidon, 25 miles south of Beirut.

Saad, whose militia controls Sidon, has threatened to reconsider his alliance with the Palestinians if Coleridge and Traboulsi are not quickly released.

He also urged all foreigners, "Easterners and Westerners alike," to leave Lebanon saying no one could provide them with protection.

Knowledgeable Shiite Moslem sources in Beirut, meanwhile, said they believe kidnapped Marine Lt. Col. William Higgins has "joined the club of hostages in Lebanon."

Higgins, 44, of Danville, Ky., who lead a United Nations observers group in south Lebanon, was kidnapped near the port city of Tyre on Feb. 17.

A pro-Iranian group, the Organization of the Oppressed on Earth, has claimed responsibility for his abduction, charging he was a spy for the CIA. U.N. and U.S. officials have denied the charge.

In addition to the Oxfam officials and Higgins, 21 foreigners are missing after being kidnapped in Lebanon, including eight other Americans.

The longest held is Terry Anderson, chief Middle East correspondent for The Associated Press. He was kidnapped March 16, 1985.

Deaf students protest selection of president

WASHINGTON (AP) — Angry students forced the closing of Gallaudet University at a protest yesterday in response to the selection of a hearing president to head the world's only liberal arts university for the deaf.

More than 300 students started blocking the school's main entrance shortly before dawn, and at about 6:45 a.m. university officials decided against opening the school. Three hours later, the number of protesters had swelled to around 750 while smaller groups blocked other gates to the campus.

The protest capped a week of campus demonstrations during which students called for the selection of the first deaf person to head Gallaudet, which was founded by an 1864 act of Congress.

Student leader Jerry Coval, 23, said protests would continue until a deaf person was hired and board of trustees chairwoman Jane Bassett Spilman was replaced.

Two of the three announced finalists for the position are deaf, but the board of trustees announced Sunday night they had selected the hearing candidate, Elizabeth Ann Zinser, an administrator at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro.

Nearly 1,000 students marched from the northeast Washington campus to the downtown hotel where the board was meeting, and then walked to Capitol Hill to continue their protest.

Yesterday, after students allowed the board members to enter the campus, the trustees declared they would talk with students only if the campus was reopened.

Coval said the campus would remain closed until the students' demands were met, and the board then backed down, agreeing to meet even though the campus remained closed.

The board of trustees and a group of 10 students, two faculty members and two staff officials began meeting at noon. Spilman and the board of trustees were slated to meet with the entire student body in the school's field house later.

Cutbacks may hurt Guard

TOLEDO (AP) — A North Carolina congressman said yesterday that cutbacks in the U.S. Coast Guard's budget will result in more maritime deaths and fewer drug seizures on the seas.

U.S. Rep. Walter Jones, D-N.C., chairman of the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee, said the Coast Guard's $2.8 billion budget for fiscal 1988 is inadequate, and lays part of the blame on his colleagues.

"The budget approved by Congress for this year falls $105 million short of what President Reagan asked for the Coast Guard," Jones said at a news conference at the Toledo-Lucas County Port Authority.

"The president's request was not generous, but it was adequate. But because too many people in Congress were indifferent to the Coast Guard, money was taken from that account and put into things like mass transit grants."

A supplemental appropriation bill is being developed to take care of the $105 million shortfall for the fiscal year that ends Sept. 30, Jones said. In addition, he said he will fight against any future Coast Guard cutbacks.

Because of its present fiscal problems, the Coast Guard is closing offices and bases and de-commissioning ships. Its aircraft and vessels are going to have to cut their operating time dramatically, he said.

"This will mean more maritime deaths and casualties and fewer drug seizures on the seas. What a short-sighted step! I am part of a coalition in Congress seeking to find the funds to restore these cut and prevent future ones. But the task is an uphill one," he said.

The proposed reductions include taking the cutter Mackinaw, the largest icebreaker on the Great Lakes, out of service, and shutting down the Ashtabula Coast Guard station, one of nine on Lake Erie. Others involve closing units on duty in New York and New Orleans harbors and on the Mississippi River, and curtailing illegal-drug interdiction, south of Florida.

Three killed by British soldiers

GIBRALTAR (AP) — British soldiers and police shot and killed three Irish Republican Army guerrillas after they planted a car bomb set to go off during a military parade in this British colony, officials and security sources said yesterday.

The two men and a woman were killed Sunday after authorities uncovered the plot to set off the car bomb on last Tuesday, British news reports said, quoting quoted unidentified security sources.

The reports said bomb-disposal experts defused 440 pounds of explosives in a Spanish-registered car parked near Gov. Sir Peter Terry's official residence in Gibraltar, on the southern tip of Spain.

British Armed Forces Minister Ian Stewart said "an intelligence tip-off" led to information about the three members of the Irish Republican Army, which is fighting a guerrilla war to drive the British out of Northern Ireland.

In Madrid, Spanish State Security spokesman Augustin Valadolid said Monday Spanish police had tipped off British authorities more than a month ago about the presence of the suspected IRA members on Spain's southern Costa del Sol.

In a statement released Sunday in Belfast, the IRA said the three were attached to "active service units" of its general headquarters in Belfast.

Libel dropped

Robertson suit dismissed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge yesterday dismissed Pat Robertson's $35 million libel suit against a former congressman who questioned his war record after the GOP presidential candidate agreed to pay the court costs.

U.S. District Judge Joyce Hens Green signed a brief order dismissing the case "with prejudice," which means that former Rep. Paul McCloskey Jr., R-Calif. is legally the victor in the dispute.

Robertson accepted the condition the judge imposed on Friday in a one-sentence letter from his attorney Douglas Rigger that was delivered to the judge's chambers by messenger.

Under terms of the dismissal, Robertson must pay court fees, printing costs and court reporters' fees, but not McCloskey's attorney's fees. McCloskey said in an interview Saturday that he would file a motion or a separate suit to recover his legal expenses.

The judge gave McCloskey's lawyers 20 days to file an itemized list of court costs to be assessed on Robertson. Those costs could range between $5,000 and $20,000, depending on conflicting estimates given by lawyers for both sides.

If Robertson had rejected Green's dismissal, he would have had to go to court in Washington yesterday to begin the trial, which was expected to last about three weeks.

Robertson said the scheduled start of the trial on Super Tuesday — when 20 states hold primaries or caucuses with a lion's share of delegates at stake — unfairly forces him to choose between his campaign for the GOP nomination and trying to vindicate his personal honor.

The suit stems from McCloskey's allegation that Robertson invoked the political influence of his late father, Sen. A. Willis Robertson, D-Va., to avoid combat in the Korean War.

Robertson filed the lawsuit in 1986 following publication of McCloskey's allegation by two syndicated columnists. After the suit was filed, several former Marines came forward to support McCloskey's allegation.

Robertson said last week he planned to drop the suit but would not pay McCloskey's legal fees.

McCloskey, who said he would prefer to go to trial, said Saturday that if Robertson accepts the dismissal of the suit, he is conceding that he lied about his role in Korea.

Vote could end strike

CLEVELAND (AP) — Schools reopened yesterday for nearly 73,000 public school students as members of the Cleveland Teachers Union began voting on a tentative contract that could end a strike.

The 5,093 union members walked off their jobs Feb. 25, but they agreed to return to work yesterday while teachers voted on the pact, which includes a 2 percent pay raise retroactive to September and another 2 percent wage increase as of March 1. Ballots are to be tallied at 5:30 p.m. Friday, and the union says it will resume its strike if the agreement isn't approved.

John Hairston, spokesman for Cleveland Public Schools, said attendance appeared to be good yesterday, although he didn't have any figures. He said many parents called the school early yesterday to make sure that classes would be held and that buses would be running.

Each union member is to cast a secret ballot at his own school building on the proposed three-year pact, said Richard Farmer, the union's director of organization.

A104 Physical Education

My first time tutoring was a night to remember. My student was something called Bone Crusher Reed, a.k.a. Billy Jo, defensive tackle for the football team.

I had the shock of my life when he answered his dorm room door. He was about six foot seven...in diameter. And when he shook my hand, I thought I'd never get it back.

So there I was, face-to-knee with the big man on campus, wondering how I was going to relate American Literature to The Hulk.

But then he pulled out a can of Orange Cappuccino. I was shocked! Could it be that this tough jock liked its delicate taste? And when Bone Crusher brought out the bone china, I was beyond belief.

Reading the expression on my face, he said, "What can I say? I like it. The Café Français is pretty good, too." Well, who's going to argue, I thought. As we sipped our Orange Cappuccino, I discovered that Billy Jo loves reading novels; his only problem was poetry. So I gave him tips on reading Emily Dickinson, and he gave me a copy of Ann Beattie's "Falling in Place."

All I could think was, Dad's never going to believe this!

Cagers rip Cards; face OU tonight

Coach confident
Falcons will winby Ron Fritz
news editor

Jim Larranaga is a confident man, but more importantly, he is a confident coach.

Heading into tonight's first-round Mid-American Conference tournament game against Ohio University in Athens, Larranaga is talking about winning — and not just the game against the Bobcats (14-13 overall, 9-7 in the MAC).

"We don't want to win just one game," Bowling Green's second-year head coach said. "We want to win the tournament, but to do that you have to win the first one."

"We're (all MAC teams) in the same boat for the NCAA tournament. If you don't win the MAC tournament, you aren't going to the NAAs."

Bold talk for a coach whose team is 12-15 overall and 7-9 in the league? Maybe.

But Larranaga can substantiate it with two impressive, back-to-back stretch runs by the Falcons.

Last season, BG won seven of its final 10 games, including five straight. Two of those victories were over OU, including a first-round win in the MAC tourney.

This season, the Falcons won five of their last seven games to earn a berth in the tourney. Saturday's 77-56 bludgeoning of Ball State clinched a tie for fifth place for BG.

"I am pleased that this team was able to play such a fine game against Ball State under that pressure," Larranaga said. "Knowing we had to win, instead of rely on another team winning. It is credit to the seniors that we were able to play such a fine game."

Anthony Robinson, just named to All-MAC second team, scored 16 points, and fellow senior Steve Martenet added 15 points in the rout over the Cardinals.

Ball State is one of four MAC teams BG beat the second time around on the schedule, after losing the first game. This is where the confidence plays a major role, according to Larranaga.

"A lot of basketball is confidence," he said. "It is a mental game. Confidence comes from knowing — knowing what you can do and knowing what the other team can do."

"I feel more confident after playing somebody once, even if the second game is on the road. I get a better idea from my players on how to win the ball game. Hopefully, I generate my confidence to the team."

But don't let the facade of confidence fool you, Larranaga is concerned about tonight's game.

The game could rest with Paul "Snoopy" Graham. In BG's 79-65 win over the Bobcats the first time the two teams met, Graham had 25 points — all in the second half. He was a unanimous All-MAC first-team selection.

"You can't stop Snoopy nor is it one of our goals," Larranaga said. "We want to disrupt the motion of their offense — so the shots he gets don't come easy."

Larranaga also said rebounding and getting to the foul line are the other keys for the Falcons.

OU coach Billy Hahn said yesterday by phone that rebounding and defense will be the keys to the game, but he is more worried about stopping BG on offense, despite beating the Falcons 83-70 two weeks

goodbye
triumphantlyby Tom Skernivitz
sports editor

Bowling Green will enjoy a tomorrow and no one ensured the reprieve more than the Falcons who have spent many yesterdays donning burnt orange and seal brown attire.

BG — behind seniors Anthony Robinson, Steve Martenet and James Tyler in their Anderson Arena finale — crushed Ball State, 77-56, Saturday, ensuring the Falcons a post-season bid in the Mid-American Conference's seven-team tournament.

BG's tomorrow becomes the present at 8 p.m. today when the Falcons begin their new season against Ohio University in Athens, Ohio.

"Overall, it was really our seniors who came to the forefront," Falcon coach Jim Larranaga said. "Anthony Robinson came back and played a great second half, James Tyler did a great job on (BSU's) Derrick Wesley and Steve Martenet played an outstanding game."

Robinson and Martenet led BG scorers with 16 and 15 points, respectively, while Tyler, accustomed to playing in the shadow of his senior teammates, dished out a team-high six assists.

"To make it to the tournament was our biggest goal," Robinson said. "I'm glad that we won our last home game. Going into this game we knew we had to win. We couldn't rely on waiting until Toledo played tonight to decide whether we were going on or not."

A loss Saturday would have placed the Falcons' future in the hands of the OU-Toledo game that night. If OU had won (which they did, 106-95), BG would have backed into the playoffs. This never entered the team's mind selected

all-CCHA

Four members of the Bowling Green hockey team received honors at the 16th Annual Coaches All-Central Collegiate Hockey Association Team press conference yesterday.

Nelson Emerson, Scott Paluch, Andy Gribble and Alan Leggett were honored for their efforts during regular-season play.

Emerson, a sophomore from Waterford, Ont., finished second to Lake Superior's Mark Vermette for CCHA's Player-Of-The-Year. Vermette won the award by receiving seven votes for 75 points, while Emerson was a distant second with one vote and 20 points.

Emerson was selected to one of three forward slots on the First-Team All-CCHA squad. Vermette and Western Michigan's Paul Polillo round out the First-Team forwards.

Emerson led the CCHA in scoring with 65 points during the regular season, while Polillo finished second with 62 points. Vermette led the nation in goals with 38 and finished fourth in the CCHA scoring race with 55 points.

Paluch, the senior captain from Chicago, was also named to the First-Team as a defenseman. Paluch was the top-scoring defenseman in the CCHA with 46 points. Michigan State's Tom Tilley was the other defenseman selected, while Lake Superior's Bruce Hoffer was named First-Team goalie.

Gribble, a senior winger from Toronto, was named Honorable-Mention. He finished the season with 46 points. Leggett, a steady backliner from Wainwright, Alb., paced the league's All-Academic Team with 4.0 GPA in microbiology.

'The Joe' nears as icers sweep

by Al Franco

If Friday's game was a marathon which took Bowling Green over 92 minutes to defeat Ferris State, then Saturday's match-up was a dash to the finish as the Falcons put the game away in the first 15 minutes.

BG swept FSU, 5-4, Friday and, 6-3, Saturday to move into the Central Collegiate Hockey Association semi-finals. The Falcons have a date with Michigan State Friday at 5:08 in Detroit's Joe Louis Arena. Number-one seed Lake Superior faces Western Michigan afterward with the winners playing Saturday night for the CCHA title.

Saturday, the Falcons took advantage of the momentum gained in Friday's win which came on a Matt Ruchty overtime goal in the longest game ever played in the Ice Arena. Ruchty scored at 2:10 of the fourth OT period, giving the Falcons the 5-4 victory.

The Falcons scored four unanswered goals in the first 15 minutes of Saturday's contest and never looked back.

"We were tired just like they were tired," BG head coach Jerry York said. "I think when you win the night before, you kind of play through it easier. When we went up 4-0, I think for the most part that it was over."

Sophomore Nelson Emerson scored two of the first four goals and assisted on another, while senior Brent Regan added a goal and an assist in the opening stanza.

BG outshot FSU 23-7 in the opening period and shell-shocked Bulldog starter Mike Williams who was pulled in favor of Marc Felicio after the Falcons' fourth goal at 14:33.

"Tonight, we got ahead of them early enough to set them back a bit," Emerson said.

A stingy Falcon defense combined with relentless offense prevented the Bulldogs from making a serious run in the game.

The combination frustrated the Bulldogs enough to play much of final two periods as lumberjacks wielding axes (in this case their sticks) against a forest of orange and seal brown (the torso's of BG players).

While the team's traded goals in the second period, they also swapped 14 penalties — 10 of the stick-swinging variety including a game-disqualification issued to Bulldog Clark Davies for spearing.

"(After the first period) it was let's not get hurt there," York said. "I thought there was a lot of unnecessary stick-swinging."

5-4 and 6-3, last weekend and now must face Michigan State Friday in the CCHA semi-finals.

Ruchty star in four OTsby Al Franco
sports reporter

Sometimes you just have a gut-feeling — a premonition. Call it what you will, but whatever it is, Matt Ruchty had one before his goal in the fourth overtime of Friday's game.

"I had a feeling that something was going to happen to-night," Ruchty said. "I said to Chad Arthur on the bench that I bet it's either you or I who scores the goal because Chad had a hundred and one chances and I had a couple."

It's ironic Ruchty spoke to Arthur whom Ruchty replaced during the latter stages of OT play. BG head coach Jerry York made the change, opting for quicker legs to play on the Joe Quinn and Brian Meharry line.

"Chad Arthur had played real well, but he (Ruchty) was really fresh," York said.

The freshman from Kitchener, Ont. said he was grateful for the opportunity to see some quality playing time.

Bowling Green center Angie Bonner grabs one of her three offensive rebounds in the Falcons 90-70 Mid-American Conference victory over Ball State Saturday. BSU came at the Falcons in numbers, but were unable to get over the hump. BG is now 22-5 overall, 14-2 in the MAC. The Cardinals fall to 6-21, 4-12. The Falcons play in the conference tournament semi-finals Friday at Centennial Hall beginning at 3 p.m.

by Andy Woodard
assistant sports editor

Three Bowling Green women's basketball players concluded their home careers in style at Anderson Arena Saturday.

In the Falcons' 90-70 Mid-American Conference victory over Ball State, senior guards Wendi Huntley and Chris Mossing and senior center Dawn Eastman made all the right moves in their last home game.

Eastman scored nine points and grabbed two rebounds, while Mossing tossed in eight points and passed out six assists. Huntley, playing her best game of the season, scored a career-high six points and made two assists.

"Chris played well and that was nice, and I was glad that Dawn Eastman played well because she's been sick all week. She came back and played very well," Falcon head coach Fran Voll said. "Wendi played well, also. She got a lot of playing time.

"It was a big game for the three seniors and that's what we like to have. And then for them to be able to win their last game at home and play as much as they did is a big accomplishment."

"I hoped the seniors would have a good day. I wanted them to leave knowing that they made a large contribution to our basketball team this year. This will be a game that those kids won't forget."

The game was a one to remember for the seniors.

With BG leading 41-33 at halftime, the Cardinals, who needed a win to keep any hope for a MAC tournament bid alive, came out fighting — pulling to within 54-47 on Michelle Baker layup at the 14:00 minute mark.

But after a BG timeout, the Falcons went on a 16-2 run as Tecca Thompson scored six points and Eastman and Megan McGuire scored four each.

"I called timeout and fortunately we got it going after that," Voll said. "In some areas we could have played better at times. But we've had so many big games lately. We just had to get the job done. I'm just happy that we played as well as we did."

Down the stretch, Voll let the seniors play the majority of the minutes. Huntley played her best in the final minutes, scoring four points, making two assists and grabbing a rebound.

"This was my last game here at home and I wanted to play well," Huntley said. "In the second half I was aggressive and played my game."

Mossing made a steal and deflected a pass, while Eastman scored three points and grabbed a rebound, all in the final minutes of play.

"They all played well (at the end)," Voll said.

BG out to repeat at MAC

by Andy Woodard
assistant sports editor

Central Michigan will attempt to reach the women's Mid-American Conference title game for the sixth straight year, while Bowling Green will be out to repeat as champions in the conference tourney this week.

The Chippewas (the No. 4 seed) host No. 5 Toledo tonight at 5:45 p.m. Other games tonight have No. 6 Kent State at No. 3 Miami (7:30 p.m.) and No. 7 Ohio University at No. 2 Western Michigan (8 p.m.).

Bowling Green, by virtue of winning the regular-season title, has a first-round bye.

The quarter-final winners will join the No. 1 Falcons at Centennial Hall in Toledo, Friday, for the semi-finals. BG plays the CMU-UT winner at 3 p.m., while the KSU-MU, OU-WMU winners meet at 1 p.m.

The title game is at 2 p.m. Saturday and will decide who receives the automatic bid to the NCAA tournament.

"Friday is the most important thing the world," BG head coach Fran Voll said. "It's a whole new season for everyone."

One team which could benefit the most in tournament play is

by Andy Woodard

After watching all the Mid-American Conference women's basketball teams play this season, here are my picks for tonight's quarter-final games.

No. 2 seed Western Michigan hosts No. 7 seed Ohio University

WMU has too good an all-around game for the Bobcats to handle. Plus, OU has been plagued by injuries, especially to star forward Kim Walton, and has started a young team of late. WMU 84-66.

No. 3 seed Miami University hosts No. 6 seed Kent State

Miami is tough at home where they have a record of 9-1 this season. Miami's defense is by far the best in the league, and will handle KSU's high-scoring offense. This will be a close game. MU 73-69.

No. 4 seed Central Michigan hosts No. 5 seed Toledo

The Rockets have played well of late, especially on the road. UT forward Keri Cartwright has sparked the team inside, while guard Jodi Witte has provided solid play in the backcourt. CMU has been up and down. This game will be close, also. UT 76-73.

Trost helps Falcons to win

by Don Hensley
sports reporter

The Bowling Green gymnastics team rode the broad shoulders of Kim Trost Saturday when they posted a 176.25-174.3 home victory over Central Michigan.

Trost led the way for the Falcons in posting a season-high all-around score of 36.4. The senior captain was sensational in all events, but responded best on the balance beam.

This was where the tumblers needed the biggest boost. The Falcons had taken a one-point lead onto the beam, and were in jeopardy of losing it when Trost scored a season-high of 9.4. Her performance seemed to take the wind out of the Chippewas as BG pulled away the rest of the meet.

"We fell apart on the beam," BG head coach Charles Simpson said. "We haven't been working on the beam much in practice and we're happy to see Kim score as well as she did."

BG jumped out to an early lead on the vault where they led 44.7-44.55. They were led by Trost's first-place finish score of 9.05. Freshman Kim Crawford and sophomore Lisa Hillman each scored a 9.0, which earned them a second-place finish.

The Falcons built their lead on the uneven bars where Hillman scored a season-high 9.15 to take first place in the meet. BG inflated its lead to 87.45-86.3, which was due to the consistency the tumblers showed throughout the bars.

After the beam, the women had their lead cut to 130.9-130.0. But they took over on the floor exercise and never looked back as four Falcon tumblers scored a 9.0 or above. Leading the floor assault was Suzanne Bell and Trost who both scored 9.15s. Also pacing the tumblers were Meg Griffin and Hillman who both tallied 9.0s. This led to the BG victory on the floor 45.35-44.2, which closed out the Falcon scoring.

The Central squad was paced by the always solid performance of Shelby Root, who scored in all-around 35.05. Her best performance was on the uneven bars, where she scored an 8.95.

BG is now entering the crucial part of the season in which they must prepare themselves for the Mid-American Conference meet which is only three weeks away.

"With the MAC's coming up it is crucial that we get our new routines ironed out," Simpson said. "Everyone is working hard and the bottom line will be told in three weeks."

Falcons fifth at MAC; EMU first

by Mark Huntebrinker
sports reporter

The Eastern Michigan men's swim team added yet another Mid-American Conference championship banner to hang in their natatorium last weekend as they captured their ninth-consecutive MAC title at Ohio University's Aquatics Center.

The Hurons scored 848.5 points in running away with the three day meet. Miami (460.5), Ohio (446.5), Ball State (442.5), Bowling Green (407), Toledo (178), and Kent State (159) rounded out the seven-team field.

There was little doubt that EMU had the meet under control after the first night, but the battle for the second through fifth spots were undecided until the last event.

Although BG finished fifth for the second year in a row, they improved on last year's performance and set nine different school records in the process. In the 1987 MAC championships the Falcons ended 60 points out of fourth place, this year they found themselves 52.5 points behind second-place MU and were in third place until the three-meter diving finals — the last event. "We swam well but we got tired as the week went on," head coach Brian Gordon said.

"Depth is something we need to improve on for next season."

While depth was the downfall for the tankers, three Falcons turned in fine individual performances. Rich Foster shattered three school records in the 50 yard freestyle, 100 freestyle, and the 200 freestyle. His 200 freestyle time of 1:39.94 was good for a second-place finish overall.

Tim Wagner set school records in the 200 and 400 individual medley events. Tom Solomon also broke an individual school record in the 100 breaststroke.

The 400 medley relay team of Jon Warnick, Solomon, Andrew Layne and Foster etched their name into the BG record books and took a second-place finish overall.

Although last weekend's action signaled the end of the season for the BG men and women swimmers, three Falcon divers will be attempting to qualify for the NCAA Championships this Friday and Saturday at Ohio State University. Mary Pfeiffer, four-time MAC diver of the year, Sue Cleveland, and Michael Poindexter will attempt to earn a spot in the NCAA Championships.

The women's championships are slated for March 17-19 in Austin, TX. The men's championships are scheduled for April 7-9 in Indianapolis, IN.

Robinson named to MAC second-team

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Ohio University's Paul "Snoopy" Graham, Eastern Michigan's Grant Long and Central Michigan's Dan Majerle have all been unanimously selected to the 1987-88 Mid-American Conference all-league team in voting by the coaches.

Joining Graham, Long and Majerle on the All-MAC first team were Kent State's Reggie Agams, Central's Tommie Johnson and Ball State's Derrick Wesley. The six-man first team is a result of a tie in the voting.

The second team included Western Michigan's Mark Brown, Eastern Michigan's Howard Chambers, Kent's Eric Glenn, Ohio U.'s John Rhodes and Bowling Green's Anthony Robinson.

Ohio U.'s Dave Jamerson, Toledo's Chad Keller, Eastern's Lorenzo Neely and Western Michigan's Steve Riikonen received honorable mention.

Graham, a 6-foot-6 junior from Philadelphia, ranked among the top 10 in MAC scoring (20.1 points per game), rebounding (5.1), assists (2.7), steals (1.3), field goal percentage (.553) and free throw percentage (.794).

Long, a 6-8 senior from Romulus, Mich., led EMU to its first MAC title ever. He ranked second to Majerle in scoring (22.7) and rebounding (10.5) and was among the MAC leaders in field goal percentage (.546) and free throw shooting (.779).

Majerle, a 6-6 senior from Traverse City, Mich., needs one more point to reach the 2,000 mark for his career. He led the MAC in scoring (23.4) and rebounding (10.8).

Majerle is a three-time first-team All-MAC selection. Long was also a first-team pick last year. Wesley was a second-team selection a year ago, and Adams, Graham and Johnson all received honorable mention last season.

Adams, a 6-0 junior from Cleveland, averaged 15.3 points and 3.5 assists per game. He was second in the MAC in steals and was among the league leaders in field (.531) and free throw (.762) shooting.

Johnson, a 6-2 senior from Flint, Mich., broke the MAC single-game scoring record with 53 points against Wright State. He averaged 19.2 points, sixth best in the MAC.

Wesley, a 6-3 senior from South Bend, Ind., stands 14th on the MAC career scoring list with 1,698 points. He averaged 20.2 points this season and has scored more than 1,100 points each of the last two years.

Angie Bonner of Bowling Green, Maria Fantanarosa of Miami of Ohio, Kelly Savage of Toledo, Yvonne Thompson of Western Michigan and Kim Walton of Ohio U. earned second-team honors.

Eastern Michigan's Chris Chandler, Ball State's Jenny Eckert, Kent's Jennifer Grandstaff, Bowling Green's Megan McGuire, Central Michigan's Molly Piche and Miami's Kim Tullis received honorable mention.

before the Cardinals' game, according to Larranaga, who has taken his team to the MAC tourney twice in as many years here.

"So much of basketball is preparation, and your mental attitude going into games is definitely seen during the game," Larranaga said. "And our attitude (Friday) was tremendous — great enthusiasm, all 15 guys practicing hard and loose and it gave me tremendous confidence we would play well Saturday."

The confidence showed as the Falcons jumped to a 10-2 lead early on.

BSU recaptured the lead, 22-16, behind 12 points from Wesley and baskets from Grego Miller and Rodney Haynes.

A Joe Moore basket and two-straight three-pointers from Martenet gave BG a 24-22 lead, but Wesley — who finished with a game-high 22 points — canned a three-pointer to edge BSU ahead, 25-24.

BG's Joe Gregory then nailed a jumper to put BG ahead 26-25. The Falcons never looked back while taking a 41-25 lead at halftime.

The Cards could get no closer than 10 points the rest of the game as Robinson — who recovered from a first-half neck injury — and Lamon Pippin went to work for the Falcons.

"Bowling Green played the way they had to play — with their backs to the wall," BSU coach Rick Majerus said. "Our guys didn't come out with any fire in their eyes or any heart."

the Rockets. Toledo played CMU tough both times during the regular-season, losing 63-61 at CMU and 61-58 in Centennial Hall, and could be the dark horse of the tourney.

If the Rockets upset the Chippewas, then they would be playing on their home court for the semi-finals and finals.

"I would like to think that we could be a darkhorse in the tournament," UT head coach Tim Selgo said. "We're playing good basketball right now."

We're playing with confidence. I like our chances, but we have to play good basketball on the road first."

Selgo said BG is the team everyone will have to beat to win the title.

"They're certainly the odds on favorite to win it," he said. "They were the best team in the conference after the 16-game regular-season. They definitely have to be the favorites."

"But anything can happen now. You have to take them one game at a time."

Last year, the Falcons marched to the championship with close victories over the Golden Flashes and CMU.

But this is the first year which the tournament has had a quarter-final round. BG head coach Fran Voll said he is not sure what the bye means advantage-wise.

"Two games in a week seems like enough to me. We'll find out if the layoff is good or bad," Voll said. "But it might as well be us that gets it."

Voll said he will use the time off to work on some fundamentals his team needs drill on.

ago. "I think we have to do a good job of controlling all of BG's players," Hahn said. "All are very good athletes with the ability to hurt us. "BG is playing well at a good time of the season.

Ruchty

"I think the second overtime period was the first time I got out on that line," Ruchty said. "The first time I got out there I just happened to have a good shift. I'm glad the coach stuck with me."

And when opportunity knocked, Ruchty answered the door as his prediction became a fact at 2:10 of the fourth overtime.

Ruchty stationed himself in front of the Ferris State net and called for the puck. Meharry responded by dishing the puck to Ruchty from behind the net, and Ruchty one-timed it toward the goal.

Bulldog goalkeeper Marc Felicio, who had stopped 61 previous BG shots, managed to get a piece of the puck with his left pad but not enough as it trickled in the net behind him.

"I just thought that was a great play by Meharry and Quinn," Ruchty said. "This is probably the greatest thing that's happened to me this season. It's the way I've helped the team out so far."

Ironically, the last Falcon to score a goal in a fourth OT was Gino Cavallini in the 1984 NCAA National Championship in Lake Placid. This year's finals are also in Lake Placid.

You never can tell when death will

It just doesn't seem right.
They had the world at their fingertips

Bowling Green's Nelson Emerson, shown here scoring the Falcons' fourth goal in BG's 6-3 win against Ferris State, Saturday night, was selected as one of 10 finalists for the Hobey Baker Award, college hockey's equivalent to football's Heisman Trophy.

Emerson nominated Hobey Baker finalist

by Al Franco
sports reporter

Bowling Green's Nelson Emerson received a nomination as one of 10 finalists for the Hobey Baker Memorial Award, college hockey's equivalent to the Heisman. The winner will be announced on March 30 at Lake Placid.

The centerman, who hails from Waterford, Ont., captured the Central Collegiate Hockey Association regular-season scoring title with 28 goals and 37 assists for 65 points. Emerson was also named First-Team All-CCHA yesterday.

"That's quite an achievement for Nelson," BG head coach Jerry York said. "I think he's certainly earned it."

Emerson's play has not slackened since his outstanding freshman year which saw him score 26 goals and 35 assists for 61 points. He was dubbed the CCHA's Rookie of the Year.

"With all the attention he's received through the recruiting process and now through two years here, he's kept such a level head," York said. "You can't help but admire him for the type of person he is."

Former Falcon George McPhee won the trophy after the 1981-82 campaign. McPhee is the only CCHA performer to have captured the award.

The CCHA has another finalist in Lake Superior's Mark Vermette, the CCHA's Player-Of-The-Year. He led the nation in goal scoring during the regular season with 38 and finished the fourth in the league in scoring with 55 points.

The other eight finalists with class, regular-season final statistics and college are as follows: Phil Berger, Jr., (37-31-68 in 34 games), Northern Michigan; Rejean Boivin, Sr., (19-16-35 in 22 games), Colgate; Dave Capuano, Soph., (25-34-59 in 26 games), Maine; Mike Golden, Sr., (13-28-41 in 26 games), Maine; Steve Johnson, Sr., (27-44-71 in 35 games), North Dakota; Pete Lappin, Sr., (12-24-36 in 20 games), St. Lawrence; Paul Ranheim, Jr., (26-22-48), Wisconsin; Robb Stauber, Soph., (2.91 goals against average in 35 games), Minnesota.

FSU outscored BG, 2-1, in the third period, but the game was never in jeopardy.

While Saturday's game was never in doubt, Friday's game became a question of whether BG could beat freshman goalie Marc Felicio in the OT periods. Felicio set a FSU record by stopping an amazing 61 shots in the contest.

There were two points in the game where Felicio was simply unbeatable.

The first duration came between the closing minutes of the first period and the 14:08 mark of the third period when Emerson tied the score at 4-4. In the regulation time, Felicio stopped 38 of 42 shots.

The second duration came in OT where the freshman stopped 23 shots before yielding the game-winner to Ruchty.

"He (Felicio) just keeps getting better," FSU head coach John Perpich said. "... I think we want to give up as few good percentage shots as possible. The entire team worked hard to try and accomplish that tonight."

As far as the scoring was concerned, it was a see-saw battle throughout the contest.

BG scored the first, third and fifth goals of the period to take a 3-2 lead after the first 20 minutes. Senior Don Barber opened the scoring just 44 seconds into the contest and also scored BG's second goal of the game at 6:53.

Bill Thomas scored at 2:50 of the second period to tie the game 3-3, before Dean Cowling gave the Bulldogs a 4-3 lead at 3:23 of the third period. After Cowling's goal, the BG offense started to roll pressuring the Bulldogs in their own zone. At the same time, Falcon goalie Paul Connell steered away all Bulldog chances, stopping 30 shots in the outing. BG's persistence paid dividends as Emerson gathered in a Andy Gribble pass and wheeled around Felicio to tie the game with 5:52 remaining in the third period.
